HE DISTURBED FAMILY PLANS.

The Secret of the Fight Against Commissioner Kolb.

HE MADE HIS UNCLE ANGRY By Yielding to the Wishes of the Farmer, AND RUNNING FOR GOVERNOR.

The Latest from Alabama's Political Field.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 28.—[Special Staff Correspondence.]—This has been a day of anxiety for the candidates, of preparation for the delegates. Cheers for Jones, the gallant Georgian, who won fame on General Gordon's staff, made the morning air merry. The enthusiasts were promptly dispersed by several efficient cops, who had passed the night without making an t. These cheers, however, were omin-Upon a pulse-feeling of the delegates gathered around the exchange, I learned that besides the fifty instructed votes for Jones, there was a decided undercurrent for him. Colonel Jones is the soul of chivalry. His bearing toward all the other candidates has been so considerate and courteous that all feel friendly towards him, and if the heavy battering rams should exhaust their strength against each other, no man stands a better chance than

Colonel Jones to reap what the late Mr. Tilden so sentiously called the "usufruct." A FAMILY DISAGREEMENT. The contest remains tonight as it has here-tofore-Kolb against the field. The secret of the bitter animosity toward Kolb is one full of interest, and as it springs out of family disagreement, it becomes all the more particular. Kolb's mother was a Miss Shorter, a member of a family which has always taken the lead in Alabama politics. Having furnished one governor to the state, the family is traditionally proud, and each generation recognizes some particular one of the house as the chief of the clan. To the fortunes of this chosen chief, all the rest prove loyal, sinking their own ambitions in the endeavor to have the head of the house properly recognized. The present head of the clan is Henry R. Shorter, now one of the railroad commissioners of the state. He is a courtly old gentleman of about sixty years, proud of his family and of the deference which its members accord to him. Until his ambition to serve one term as governor was satisfied, it was esteemed treason for any other member to appeal to the people. The only office he has been able to get, however, was that of railroad commissioner. Naturally, a family of such prominence, which has been so long a time in olitics, has made the alliance matrimonial; Social, political and in the way of obligation.

Thus it is that the Shorters of today have a claim upon some high office, in the pursuit of which they have the right to command the support of almost every family in the state, which numbers itself among the ruling class. Circumstances have kept Colonel Shorter in the background heretofore, but they had about ripened this time and all seemed favorable. But an obstacle arose in an unexpected

HOW KOLB WAS BROUGHT OUT. Commissioner of Agriculture Kolk, a nephew of Henry R. Shorter, felt that the office which helheld was not as high as he should aspire to. He had rendered good service, and the farmers were loud in their praise of the efficient comnission. He answered their letters promptly, visited them in local meetings and helped to lift them out of the slough of despair into which they had fallen. At the state convention of the Farmers' Alliance held in Auburn last June, the commissioner was a prominent figure. The delegation, one by one, urged him to consent to the use of his name for the governorship, but he hesitated. On the first evening of the convention Commissioner Kolb was invited to tea at the residence of Professor Lupton. There were there to meet him, Dr. W. C. Macune, president of the National Alliance; Rev. S. M. Adams, president of the State Alliance; Hon. H. G. McCall, Mr. Frank Baltzell and others, whose names do not occur just now. These gentlemen had an informal conversation in which it is claimed that Mr. Kolb gave a conditional assent to enter the race, when the consultation was adjourned until 10 o'clock state alliance. There Mr. Kolb agreed to run if the sentiment of the farmers should make itself sufficiently distinct. From that hour, maybe, dated the candidacy of Mr. Kolb.

THE UNCLE WAS ANGRY. When the news came to the ears of Mr. Henry R. Shorter that his nephew was to antagonize his ambition, he grew furious. He wrote a letter in which he upbraided Mr. Kolb for infringing upon the family arrangements and in an interview with a prominent citizen of Eufaula, now the leader of the Kolb delegation from Barbour county, Shorter said, in substance, that the race of Kolb meant his own political death and ended by saying that Kolb was an overrated man.

"That may be so, replied the gentleman;
but he is no more overrated than the rest of

Much of the malignant matter published about Mr. Kolb charging him with grave crimes, is the work of his own uncle, who is here now, one of his most bitter opponents and

BUSINESS BEGINS.

When the conventien was called to order at noon, every delegate was in his seat. The opening address was made by Colonel H. C. Tompkins, chairman of the state committee. He stated in the outset that when he called the convention to order he congratulated the demo-cratic party of Alabama that the national government was in charge of the party, and that one of its sons filled the presidential chair. He congratulated the convention that the state was still in the charge of the democratic party, and he was sure that it would continue so. He called attention to the great democratic gain since the defeat of the party two years ago; gains which caused the independent press of the country to say the republicans in power were not able to create new republican states as fast as the democrats, out of power, could win the old republican states. He referred glowingly to Mr. Cleveland's retirement from office to private life. The mention of Cleveland's name was received with great cheering. Colonel Tompkins advised calm deliberation, and promised that the nominees of the convention will carry the democratic of the convention will carry the democratic banner to success, and Alabama will be the first state to speak before the fall campaign.

Colonel Denson captured the convention when he declared that no individual should be considered, but only the good of the democratic party. There were classes who had grievances, but these grievances were the result of republican legislation. He called upon all to join the democratic party in undoing the pernicious legislation of the republican party. "We know nothing here but democracy," he exclaimed. "No side issue, no men, but democracy, pure and simple. The one great question which overshadows all others is white supremacy against negro domination. That is supremacy against negro domination. That is a question which goes home to every house-hold, and it leaves no room for any other."

CONTESTING DELEGATIONS. The call of the roll disclosed three contesting delegations—from Chilton, Lee and Shelby counties. Awaiting the action of the committee on credentials, the convention adjourned until 5 o'clock, at which time another adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when, if the report is ready, the first ballot will be speedily reached, and there will be something upon which to base calcula-

As to the result, it is impossible to say more than has been previously said, that Colonel Kolb has the prize almost in his grasp, but the slightest change will be sufficient to bear it away from him.

"I am certain to be nominated on the third ballot," said he, in answer to a question, "and feel no doubt about it."

One thing has been decided upon. That is, that the majority rule shall prevail. This will be the report of the committee on permanent organization tomorrow, and may provoke a big fight. P. J. MORAN.

Bill.

Washington, May 28.—In the senate, Mr. Sherman, from the committee on foreign affairs, reported an amendment to be offered to the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill, authorizing the president to carry into effect the recommendation of the international conference by the appointment (by and with the advice and consent of the senate) of three commissioners to represent the United States in the inter-continental railway commission, whose compensation is to be paid from the common fund to be contributed by the several nations interested; also to detail from the army and navy such officers as may be spared without detriment to the service, to serve as engineers under such commission in making the survey (their expenses to be paid by the commission) and appropriating $65,000 as the share of the United States of the expenses of such commission and survey.

Mr. Call yielded the floor to Mr. Allison, who presented the conference report on the army appropriation bill.

Mr. Ingalls inquired what had been done in regard to the senate amendment prohibiting the sale of alcoholic liquors, beer or wine in cantens.

Mr. Allison said that the provision had been modified so as to read "that no aicoholic liquors, beer or wine shall be sold or supplied to enlisted men in any canteen, or post-trader's

Mr. Vest, at 6:10, moved adjournment. No quorum voted, and upon roll call only forty senators answered. Another motion to adjourn and another roll call failed of a quorum. Mr. Blair again moved to adjourn, remarking that the senate was in no condition to pass a temperance bill.

The motion was agreed to, and the senate, at 6:40, adjourned till tomorrow.

DECORATING THE BUILDINGS.

The city is crowded and everything seems to be in readiness for the great event of tomorrow—the unveiling of the Lee statue.

The principal streets on the line of march, side streets and private residences are gaily decorated with union, confederate and state flags, bunting, banners and shields, while here and there residences and business places, in various parts of the city, are adorned. Street cars and vehicles have also caught the decoration fever. Detachments of military and veteran camps are constantly arriving, all of veteran camps are constantly arriving, all of whom are met by details and escorted to places whom are met by details and escorted to places of rendezvous. The patriotic airs of bands of music and the steady tramp of soldiers through the streets, create considerable enthusiasm. A majority of private residences are entertaining invited guests, while the hotels and boarding-houses have all they can do. The crowd will be largely augmented in numbers by all early morning trains. It is estimated that at least 50,000 visitors will be here by noon tomorrow.

ARRIVAL OF GENERAL LONGSTREET.

General Longstreet arrived today with the Washington Artillery, and was given a most cordial welcome by the Richmond Howitzers, who met their guests at the station.

of the Army of Northern Virginia. The room was packed with prominent people including all the distinguished officers in the city. Gen-eral E. M. Law, of South Carolina, delivered the address, which was an able justification of the confederate cause. While he was speaking General Jubal Early came in. He dressed in the confederate gray and slouch hat. When he got to the door and found the entrance blocked, he halted, and some one cried: "Make way for General Early." old warrior was fairly taken in the arms of the veterans and carried through the court into the room. Everybody rose from his seat and cheered. The old generals pressed forward to clasp Early's hand, and General Law had to stop speaking several minutes. Such enthusiasm was never seen here before. When General Law had finished speaking everybody cried for Early, and he responded briefly. In response to calls, Generals Fitz Lee, Kershaw, Lawton and Butler erals Fitz Lee, Kershaw, Lawton and Butler made brief remarks. It was 10:40 o'clock before the meeting broke, and the society was entertained at a banquet at Langer Hall, where toasts were responded to by Governors Gordon, Governor Fowle, General Fitz Lee and others. GENERAL LAW'S SPEECH.

In his speech, General Law spoke of Grant and reconstruction, and said:
General Grant, the union hero and president, was never greater in all his eventful career than when, with the destinies of two armies in his hands, he reconstructed the union by the terms given at Appomattox, a construction which, if allowed to stand, would have quickly healed the wounds of war, and left no "bloody chasm" to be bridged by the devilish devices of pestilent politicians. The terms of surrender emphasize the truth that there was no such thing as rebellion or treason involved in the issue. Rebels are never granted rolls of honor; traitors are never granted rolls of defeat with their swords and badges of rank upon them. The confederate soldiers were worthy of such terms, yielding in a contest in which they had lost all but honor. They have preserved that inviolate.

One of the features of tomorrow will be the feeding of an immense crowd of veterans at the tabernacle, built for the Rev. Sam Jones. This structure will accommodate ten thousand people. The authorities are prepared for at least two thousand old soldiers. This reunion of these veterans will be one of the most interesting gatherings of this notable occasion. These men will come from every section of the south, from West Virginia to Texas. Many of them will most again for the first time since

The governors of Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia were present, accompanied by their staff officers.

NEW YORK, May 28.—[Special.]—Nearly 200 ex-confederates now residing and doing business in New York, and many of whom were officers in the southern army, left this city at 7 o'clock this evening in a special train of the Pennsylvania Railroad company for Richmond, Va., where they will participate in the ceremonies connected with the unveiling of the statue of General Robert E. Lee. The train consisted of five sleepers and three day coaches, all of which were confortably filled. The arrangements for the trip were made by the Confederate Veterans' association, of New York, and the party was in charge of Colonel Edward Owen, of the Southern society, who commanded the Washington Artillery, of New Orleans, during the war. The majority of the excursionists wore large slouch hats, of a gray color, around which was wound a gray and silver cord, this being the nearest approach to a confederate uniform. They wore on their coat lappels a small badge, the new design of the New York Southern society.

The Friendship Between Davis and Lee.

NO JEALOUSIES OR QUARRELS.

Mr. Davis's Speech at the Lee Memorial Meeting.

FOLLOWED DUTY TO THE END.

Recollections of the Chaplain of Lee's University.

RICHMOND, Va., May 28.—[Special Correspondence.]—One of the saddest things in history is the bickerings and jealousies of public

A large volume might be written on "The Quarrels of Federal Generals" during the late war, and while it was by no means as bad in the confederacy, yet truth compels the statement that there were misunderstandings, disagreements and even bitter quarrels between certain of our leaders, which very seriously interfered with the success of our cause.

But R. E. Lee was never a party to any of these petty jealousies and disgraceful quarrels. Always respectful to his superiors, courteous to his equals and kind to his subordinates, he commanded the admiration and love of all with whom he came in contact, and if there was ever an unkind word spoken concerning him by any confederate soldier or civilian, I never heard of it.

As illustrating this, I shall speak in this paper of the friendship between Lee and his superior officer, President Jefferson Davis, and his great lieutenant, Stonewall Jackson.

At the military academy at West Point, not in the same class, but as friends, were two cadets. Jefferson Davis, of Mississippi, and Robert Edward Lee, of Virginia, who were destined to play an important partin the history of the country, and be very closely connected in great events.

They were not thrown together much after they left the academy until Mr. Davis went to Washington as a member of congress, and General Lee, on his occasional visits to Arlington, sought to renew the friendship of their cadet life.

During the Mexican war while both of LEE AND DAVIS.

It is as much an honor to you who give as to him who receives, for above the vuigar test of merit you show yourselves competent to discriminate between him who enjoys and him who deserves success.

Robert E. Lee was my associate and friend in the military academy, and we were friends until the hour of his death. We were as eciates and friends when he was a soldier and I a congressman, and associates and friends when he led the armies of the confederacy and I held civil office; and therefore I may claim to speak as one who knew him. In the many sad scenes and perilous circumstances through which we passed together, our conferences were frequent and full; yet never was there an occasion on which there was not harmony of purpose and accordance as to means. If ever there was a difference of opinion, it was dissipated by discussion, and harmony was the result. I repeat, we never disagreed, and I may add that I never saw in him the slightest tendency to self-seeking. It was not his to make a record; it was not his to shift blame to other shoulders; but it was his, with an eye fixed upon the welfare of his country, never faltering, to follow the line of duty to the end. His was the heart that braved every difficulty, his was the mind that wrought victory out of defeat.

He has been charged with "want of dash." I wish to say that I never knew Lee to decline to attempt anything man should dare. An attempt has also been made to throw a cloud upon his character because he left the United States to join in the struggle for the liberty of his state. Without entering into politics, I deem it my duty to say one word in reference to this charge. Virginian born, descended from a family illustrious in the colonial history of Virginia, nore illustrious still in her struggle for independence, and most illustrious in her recenteffort to maintain the great principles declared in 1776. Given by Virginia to the service of the United States, he represented her in the military academy at West Point. He was not chuocated by the federal g treme delicacy, such the nice sense of honor, of the gallant gen an we deplore. But when Virginia—the state to which he owed his first and last allegiance—withdrew from the union and thus terminated her relations to it, the same nico sense of honor and duty which had guided him on a former occasion, had a different application, and led him to draw his sword, and, throwing it in the scale, to share her fortune for good or for evil.

thus terminated her relations to it, the same nice sense of honor and duty which had guided him on a former occasion, had a different application, and led him to draw his sword, and, throwing it in the scale, to share her fortune for good or for evil.

When Virginia joined the confederacy, and the seat of government was moved to Richinond, Low was the highest officer in the little army of Virginia, and promptly co-operated in all the movements of the confederate government for the defense of the common country. When he was sent to western Virginia he made no inquiry as to his rank, but continued to serve under the impression that he was still an officer of Virginia, and though he had, in point of fact, then been appointed general by the confederate government, he was so careloss of himself as never to have learned the fact, and only made inquiry when, ordered to another state, he deemed it necessary to know what would be his relative position towards other officers with whom he might be brought in contact.

You all remember the disastrous character of that campaign in western Virginia to which I have referred. He came back carrying the heavy weight of defeat and unappreciated by the people whom he served; for they could not know that It his plans and orders had been carried out, the result would have been victory rather than retreat. You did not know it, for I would not have known had he not reported, with the request, however, in consideration for others, that it should not be made public. The clamor which then arose followed him when he went to South Carolina; so that it became necessary to write a letter to the governor of that state, telling him what manner of man Lee was. Yet, through all this, with a magnanimity rarely equaled, he stood in silence, without defending himself or allowing others to defend him, for he was unwilling to injure any one who was striking blows for the confederacy.

Mr. Davis then spoke of the straits to which the confederacy was reduced, and of the dansor of the enterprise. Whatev

Washington as a member of a visit to Arlington, sought to renew the friendship of their cadel life.

During the Mexican was while both of them were greatly distinguished and nobly "won their spurs," it was on different fields—Davis errits "Old Rough and Leo with General Scott at Ver a Cruz, Chrubusco and other battles which opened the gates of the City of Mexico to the American army—and they did not meet.

When Mr. Davis was in the United States senate, and especialty when he was secretary of war, the old friends were thrown together and the senate of the control of the clime; when the monument we build snail have crumbled into dust, his virtues will still live, a high model for the imitation of generations yet unborn.

In private conversation, I have heard Mr. Davis speak of General Lee in terms of enthusiastic admiration, and of tender, loving friendship, and I know that it was his cherished desire to be present at the unveiling of the Lee monument in Richmond. But the Great Commander has called him up higher, and the friends and conrades of other days have met where war's "rude alarms" are never heard, and monuments are not needed. Lee cordially reciprocated the friendship of Davis, and I have heard him on several occasions speak in terms of warm admiration and loving esteem of the confederate president more than once. I heard him resent, in terms very strong for him, the habit of the northern people of concentrating all of their enmity on Mr. Davis. "I cannot see," he said, "why they should look upon President Davis as a sinner above all the rest of us.
"He was simply our leader, and only did what the confederate people put him in that position to do. He simply did his duty in trying to establish the independence of his country. The rest of us tried to do the same and were just as blameworthy as he. If he ought to be hung, then the rest of us should hang at his side."

He manifested the keenest interest in Mr. Davis during his imprisonment—did everything in his power to help him—and in his testimony before the "committee on the conduct of the war," at Washington, as well as before the United States grand jury, in Richmond, was clear and ompastic in affirming (even at his own personal risk) that Mr. Davis was no more to blame for the war or its conduct than was he or other confederates.

After the death of General Lee, I found in his letter book the following letters which will illustrate his feeling for his old chief.

The first is to Mrs. Davis in reply to one she had written him:

LEXINOTON, Va., February 23, 1866.—Mrs. Jefferson Davis, Prospect Hill, Ga.—My Dear Mrs.

LEXINOTON, Va., February 23, 1866.—Mrs. Jefferson Dayis, Prospect Hill, Ga.—My Dear Mrs.

have never seen Mr. Colfax's speech, and am therefore ignorant of the statements it contained. Had it, however, come under my notice, I doubt whether I should have thought it proper to have the part of the south was the true course, and I think so still. Controversy of all kinds will, in my opinion, only serve to continue excitement and passion, and will prevent the public mind from the acknowledgment and acceptance of the true. These considerations have the present me from reallying to accusations of the truft. These considerations have kept me from replying to accusations made against myself, and induced me to recommend the same to others.

At regards the treatment of the Andersonville prisoners, to which you allude, I know nothing, and tould say nathing of my own knowledge. I never had anything to do with any prisocers, except to send those taken on the fields where I was engaged to the provost-marshal general at Richmond.

cept to send those taken on the heids where I was engaged to the provost-marshal general at Richmond.

I have felt most keenly the suffering and imprisonment of your husband, and have earnestly consulted with friends as to any possible mode of affording him relief and consolation. He enjoys the sympathy and respect of all good men, and if, as you state, his trial is now near, the exhibition of the whole truth in his case will, I trust, prove his defense and justification. With sincere prayers for his health and speedy restoration to liberty, and earnest supplication to God that he may take you and yours under His guidance and protection, I am, with great respect, your obedient servant, (Signed) R. E. LEE.

The second is an outburst of feeling on the release of Mr. Davis from prison:

LEXINGTON, Va., June 1, 1867.—Hon. Jefferson Davis:—My Pear Mr. Davis: You can conceive better than I can express the misery from which your friends have saffered from your long imprisonment and the other afflictious incident thereto. To none has this been more painful than to me, and the impossibility of affording relief has added to my distress. Your release has lifted a load from my heart which I have not words to tell. And my daily prayer to the great ruler of the world is that He may shield you from all future harm and from all future harm and from all evil, and give you that peace which the world cannot take away. That the rest of your days may be triumphantly happy, is the sincere and carnest wish of your most obedient, faithful friend and servant, R. E. LEE.

LEE AND JACKSON.

LEE AND JACKSON.

When General Lee was called to be commander-in-chief of the Virginia forces, in the latter part of April, 1861, he found in Richmond, in command of the corps of cadets of the Virginia Military institute, Major T. J. Jackson, in whom he had recognize an old comrade, whom he had known and honered in Mexico, and in whom his military eye recognized one of the coming heroes of the impending crisis.

He at ence had him promoted and sent to take command at Harper's Ferry, and there sprung up between Lee and Jackson a friendship, and a mutual admiration which grew stronger and stronger until the great lieutenant fell at Chancellorsville.

I might write columns about Lee's admiration for Jackson, and give many incidents illustrating it, but I know nothing that better serves my purpose than what occurred on the wounding of Jackson, and Colonel Charles Marshall, Lee's military secretary, as in a

Marshall, Lee's military secretary, as in a speech at the Lee memorial meeting in Baltimore, he put it so eloquently that I will not mar the beauty of the incident he relates by abridging it, but title that the consequence the incident he relates by abridging it, but give it his own glowing words:

We recall him as he appeared in the hour of victory, grand, imposing, awe-inspiring, yet self-forgetful and humble. We recall the great scenes of his triumph, when we hailed him victor on many a bloody field, and when above the peans of victory we listened with reverence to his voice as he ascribed "all glory to the Lord of hosts, from whom all glories are." We remember that grand, magnanimity that never stooped to pluck the meaner things that grow nearest the earth upon the tree of victory, but which, with eyes turned to the stars and hand raised towards heaven, gathered golden fruits of mercy, pity and holy charity, that ripened on its topmost bough beneath the approving smile of the great God of battles.

beneath the approving smile of the great God of battles.

We remember the sublime self-abnegation of Chancellorsville, when, in the midst of his victorious legions, who, with the light of battle yet on their faces, hailed him conqueror, he thought only of his great lieutenant lying wounded on the field, and transferred to him all the honor of that silustrious day.

culy of his great lieutenant lying wounded on the field, and transferred to him all the honor of that illustrious day.

I will be pardoned, I am sure, for referring to an incident which affords to my mind a most striking illustration of one of the grandest features of his character.

On the morning of May 3d, 1863, as many of you will remember, the final assault was made upon the federal lines at Chancellorsville.

General Lee accompanied the troops in person, and as they emerged from the fierce combat they had waged in "the depths of that tangled wilderness," driving the superior forces of the enemy before them across the open ground, he rode into their midst. The scene is one that can never be effaced from the minds of those who witnessed it. The troops were pressing forward with all the ardor and enthusiasm of combat. The white smoke of musketry fringed the front of the line of hattle, while the artillery on the hills in the rear of the infantry shook the earth with its thunder, and filled the air with the wild shrieks of the shells that plunged into the masses of the retreating foe. To add greater horger and sublimity to the seene, the Chancellefsville house and the woods surrounding it were wrapped in flames. In the midst of this awful scene General Lee, mounted upon that horse which we all remember so well, rode to the front of his advancing battalions. His presence was the signal for one of those uncontrollable outbursts of enthusiasm which none can appreciate who have not witnessed them.

The fierce soldiers, with their faces blackened bursts of entinusiasin which who have not witnessed them.

The fierce soldiers, with their faces blackened with the smoke of battle, the wounded, crawling with feeble limbs from the fury of the devouring with feeble limbs from the fury of the devouring flames, all seemed possessed with a common impulse. One long, unbroken cheer, in which the feeble cry of those who lay helpless on the earth blended with the strong voices of those who still fought, rose high above the roar of battle, and halled the presence of the victorious chief. He sat in the full realization of all that soldiers dream of—triumph; and as I looked upon him in the complete fruition of the success which his genius, courage and confidence in his army had won, I thought that it must have been from some such seene that men in ancient days ascended to the dignity of the gods.

His first care was for the wounded of both armies, and he was among the foremost at the dignity of the gods.

His first care was for the wounded of both armies, and he was among the foremost at the burning mansion where some of them lay. But at that moment, when the transports of his victorious troops were drowning the roar of battle with acclanations, a note was brought to him from General Jackson. It was brought to General Lee as he sat on his horse, near the Chancellorsville house, and unable to open it with his gauntleted hands, he passed it to me with directions to read it to him. The note made no mention of the wound that General Jackson had received, but congratulated General Lee upon the great victory. I shall never forget the look of pain and anguish that passed over his face as he listened. With a voice broken with emotion he bade me say to General Jackson that the victory was his, and that the congratulations were due to him. I know not how others may regard this incident, but for myself, as I gave expression to the thoughts of his exalted mind, I forgot the genius that won the day in my reverence for the generosity that refused its glory.

Let me add what I wrote soon after the war, and what is more vivid than anything I could produce now. To Jackson's note informing him that he was wounded, General Lee replied: "I cannot express my regret at the occurrence. Could I have directed evants I him that he was wounded, General Lee replied: "I cannot express my regret at the occurrence. Could I have directed events, I should have chosen, for the good of the country, to have been disabled in your stead.

I congratulate you on the victory which is due to your skill and energy." It was on the reception of these touching words that the wounded chieftain exclaimed: "Better than ten Jacksons should fall than one Lee." Say. ten Jacksons should fall than one Lee."

ten Jacksons should fall than one Lee." Several days afterwards, when his great lieutenant was reported to be doing well, Lee playfully sent him word: "You are better off than I am; for while you have only lost your left, I have lost my right arm." Hearing soon after that Jackson was getting worse, he expressed the deepest concern, and said: "Tell him that I am praying for him as I believe I have never prayed for myself."

the deepest concern, and said: "Tell him that I am praying for him as I believe I have never prayed for myself."

The 10th of May, 1863, was a beautiful Sabbath day, and Rev. B. T. Lacy, at the special request of the dying chieftain, left his bedside to hold his usual services at the headquarters of the second corps. General Lee was present at the service, and at the conclusion he took Mr. Lacy aside to inquire particularly after Jackson's condition. Upon being told that he would not probably live through the day, he exclaimed: "Oh, sir; he must not die. Surely God will not visit us with such a calamity. If I have ever prayed in my life, I have pleaded with the Lord that Jackson might be spared to us." And then his heart swelled with emotion too deep for utterance, and he turned away to weep like a child.

The warm friendship which existed between Lee and Jackson is in beautiful contrast with the petty jealousies and bickerings which have not unfrequently marked the relations and interfered with the success of military chieftains. The rising fame of Jackson excited no envy lieutenant were most heartily endorsed by the commander-in-chief, who gave him his full confidence and warm personal friendship. He announced to the troops the death of Jackson in the following order:

HEADQUARTERS ARMY NORTHERN VIRGINIA, General Orders No. 61.

With deep grief the commanding general announces to the army the deep for the personal friendship.

With deep grief the commanding general an-unces to the army the death of Lieu-nant-General T. J. Jackson, who expired the 16th instant at a quarter past 3 p. m.

The daring, skill and energy of this great and good soldier are new, by the decrees of an Allwise Providence, lost to us. But while we mourn his death we feel that his spirit still lives, and will inspire the whole army with his indomitable courage and unshaken confidence in God as our hope and strength. Let his name be a watchword to his corps, who have followed him to victory on so many fields. Let his officers and soldiers emulate his invincible determination to do everything in the defense of our beloved country.

Major H. Kyd Douglas, of Jackson's staff, in a deeply interesting narrative, published some years ago in the Southern Magazine, says:

Major H. Kyd Douglas, of Jackson's Sam, in a deeply interesting narrative, published some years ago in the Southern Magazine, says:

On Monday morning, at the request of the officer in command of the Stonewall brigade, I went to ask General Leeft, in his judgment, it was proper to permit the old brigade, or a part of it, to accompany the remains of General Jackson to Richmond as an escort. I found the commander-inchief walking in front of his tent, looking sadand thoughtful. He listened attentively to my request, and in a voice as gentle and sad as his looks, replied: "I am sure no one can feel the loss of General Jackson more deely than I do. for no one has the same reason. I have lost a dear friend and an invaluable officer. I can fully appreciate the feelings of the men of his old brigade. They have reason to mourn for him, for he was proud of them. They have been with him and true to him since the beginning of the war. I should be glad to grant any request they might make, the object of which was to show their regard for their lost general; and I am sorry that the situation of affairs will not justify me in permitting them to go with his corpse, not only to Richmond, but to Lexington, that they might see it deposited in its last resting-place. But it may not be. Those people over the river are again showing signs of movement, and it is so necessary for me to be on hand that I cannot leave my headquarters long enough to ride to the depot and pay my dear friend the poor tribute of seeing his body placed upon the cars." Then, after stating what orders he had sent to Richmond for the reception of the remains, he said: "His friends of the Stonewall brigade may be assured their general will receive all the honor practicable. But as General Jackson himself never neglected a duty while living, he would not rest the quiever in his grave because even his old brigade had left the presence of the enemy to see him buried. Tell them how I sympathize with them, and appreciate the feelings which prompted their request. Tel of April, '63, to inform him that the enemy had crossed the river in heavy force: "Well, I heard firing, and I was beginning to think it was time some of you lazy young fellows were coming to tell me what it was all about. Say to General Jackson that he knows just as well what to do with the enemy as I do."

To one of his trusted officers, he said after Jackson's death: "I had such implicit confidence in Jacksons's skill and energy that I nevergroubled myself to give him detailed instructions. The most general instructions were all that he needed."

In speaking of Jackson one day, not long be-were all that he needed."

In speaking of Jackson one day, not long before his own fatal illness and of the irreparable loss the south sustained in his death, General Lee said with emphasis: "If I had had Stonewall Jackson at Gettysburg we should have won a great victory. And I feel confident that a complete spaces would have resulted in the wall Jackson at Gettysburg we should have won a great victory. And I feel confident that a complete success would have resulted in the establishment of our independence."

The following gives pleasing evidence of his deep interest in all details concerning the history of his great lieutenant:
"Lexington, Va., March 6, 1806.—Mr. D. Creel, Chillicothe, Ohio: My Dear Sir—I have received your letter of the 24th ultimo, and thank you for the interesting account of the early history of General T. J. Jackson. It is as pleasant as profitable to contemplate his character; to recall his patriotism, his plety and his unselfish nature. The early instructions of his mother, whom he seems never to have forgotten, may have had great influence in shaping his course through life, and that mother may have been greatly indebted to you for qualifying her for the discharge of her important duty. I hope that the remainder of your days may be passed in peace and rest, and that the merciful God who has given you such length of days and protected you amid so many dangers may comfort and support you to the end. With great respect, your obedient servant,

E. Lee."

And this affectionate confidence of his chief And this affectionate confidence of his chief was fully reciprocated by Jackson. In the summer of '62 (soon after General Lee had taken command of the army) some officer ventured to intimate in his presence that the new commander was "slow," and that the army needed such an active leader as the one who had just double-quicked his "foot cavalry" through the splendid "valley campaign." Instead of being pleased at the compliment intended to be paid him, Jackson replied in indignant tones: "General Lee is not 'slow.' No one knows the weight upon his heart—his great responsibilities. He is commander-in-chief, and he knows that if his army is lost, it cannot be replaced. No!

He is commander-in-chief, and he knows that if his army is lost, it cannot be replaced. No! there may be some persons whose good opinion of me may make them attach some weight to my views, and if you ever hear that said of General Lee, I beg that you will contradict it in my name. I have known General Lee for five-and-twenty years. He is cautious. He ought to be. But he is not slow. Lee is a physical property. phenomenon. He is the only man whom I would follow blindfold."

The opinion thus expressed in the early days of their service together during the late war (they were comrades in Mexico), seems to have strengthened up to the death of Jackson, and to have abided with Lee until he, too, was called hence.

Those who have attempted to institute comparisons between Lee and Jackson, or to exalt one at the expense of the other, have utterly misapprehended the character of both. They were indeed par nobile fratrum. They worked together for the cause they loved—their bodies sleep near each other in the beautiful "Valley of Virginia"—and it is a pleasing fancy that when Lee "struck his tent" and "crossed over the river to rest under the shade of the trees," Jackson was the first to greet and welcome him to those fadeless joys. Jackson was the him to those fadeless joys.

A DIRECT LINE. Brunswick Will Have Direct Transportation

Brunswick, Ga., May 28.—[Special.]—A direct steamship line from Brunswick to Baltimore now seems a certainty. For two weeks the Brunswick merchants have been communicating with the Merchants and Miners' Transportation company of Baltimore in regard to their extending the line here, but it seemed in vain. Today, however, a letter was received from the president of the company, saying he had reconsidered the matter and would send a traffic manager to Brunswick to mak; a careful study of the matter. The merchants at once met and appointed a committee to confer with the traffic manager upon his arrival. If the arrangements are made it will be a vast advantage to this port. From Baltimore

SHOT FROM AMBUSH.

DASTARDLY DEED IN OCONEE

Mr. E. G. Ware Fired Upon by Some Unknown Party, Who Was Hidden in the Bushes-Filled With Buckshot.

ATHENS, Ga., May 28.—[Special.]—Oconee county was the scene of a dastardly attempt at assassination tonight. About 8 o'clock, or a little thereafter, just as the darkness was beginning to be enough to conceal an assassin well, Mr. E. G. Ware, a prominent farmer, who lives in Oconee county, was going home. He had been to Athens during the day and after making several purchases had returned to his home. He was riding in a top-buggy, and was within a mile of his home, which is horse the several purchases had returned to his home. about eleven miles from this city, when it became necessary to go through a strip of woods. He started through without even suspecting that death almost lurked in the bushes at his side. Suddenly, from the ambush afforded by the thick brush, a deadly volley of buckshot poured, and then again and again. Three deadly volleys were fired and the very bows of the buggy were splintered by the buckshot. Mr. Ware fell back in his buggy, bleeding from gaping wounds in both shoulders and the left breast.

The horse carried his master on home, and a mournful and ghastly sight it was to those who first saw the buggy and its contents. The wounded man was lifted out of the buggy and carried to the house, when Dr. Golden Caruthers was summoned to his bedside. He had suffered terribly from loss of blood, and his wounds are of a serious nature, although the full extent of them cannot be ascertained at present.

Dr. W. B. Steedly, of Athens, was sent for, and went over to Watkinsville at 11 o'clock tonight. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the cowardly deed. Three shots were fired, and it is supposed that there were two dastardly assassins. They made good their escape, but in the present state of high excitement, if they are caught, they will be hung as high as Haman. Sheriff Overby has telegraphed Atlanta for blood-hounds.

Mr. Ware is one of Oconee's staunchest citizens, and the people sincerely mourn his ill luck. They wish him a speedy recovery, but such is extremely doubtful.

AN AUGUSTA MAN'S HARD LUCK. Henry E. Roth, an Augusta man, played in hard luck here this morning, while attempting to be a peace-maker. He was having his shoes blacked, down on Pennsylvania avenue, when a cab-driver and another man became engaged in a fisticuff near him. Roth rushed up and tried to separate them. He pulled the cab-driver off the other man, when the cabdriver jumped on him and knocked him into the street; at that instant a cart rushing by knocked him down and a wheel passed over his leg, breaking the small bone of his ankle Roth is now in Providence hospital.

COULDN'T GET THEIR DRINKS Speaker Reed suddenly dropped into the ranks of the prohibitionists this morning. He ordered the bar of the house restaurant closed, and gave orders that no intoxicating liquors save wine in "original packages" should be sold with lunches. As the average congressman and frequenter of the capitol drink beer and whisky a howl went up when drinks were refused them. It was of no use, however, and a rush was made upon the senate restaurant, where barrels of red liquor and beer sprinkled the parched throats of the statesmen. There had been considerable complaint of the mean whisky sold in the house restaurant, and this fact was discussed so freely that it is believed to have led to the order. As it is, the house restaurant will lose the majority of its patronage, which, however, will be gained by the senate grog-shop.

LAWSON AND COLLEY.

THE DISCUSSION AT SPARTA YES-

How Frank Colley and Judge Lawson Criticise Each Other's Conduct and Urge Their Respective Claims.

SPARTA, Ga., May 28.—[Special.]—In the Lawson-Colley debate today Colonel C. W. Dubose called the meeting to order and Hon. Seaborn Reese, in a graceful and compli-mentary manner, introduced Colonel Colley, who made an hour's speech. Colonel College began by deploring the accumulation of great riches and drifted into a brief discussion of the tariff banking system, trusts and surplus. There is no issue between the two candidates as to these questions. He then criticised adversely Judge Lawson's speech, his vote against the Olive bill, and attacked Judge Lawson's position that railroads benefit the farmers more than any other class of people, and that railroads do more good by combina-tion than otherwise. He invited an investigation of his own public record, saying jocularly that he only hoped everything about him would not be found out, and severely criticised Judge Lawson for joining the Farmers' Alli-ance at the time he did join; for being in the legislature most of the war, and for announcing his candidacy in a paper outside of his dis-

The greater part of his speech was on this line, and he was frequently interrupted with enthusiastic applause. He made a popular, but not a statesman-like speech.

Judge Lawson was introduced by Colonel J. T. Jordan as a kinsman of Hancock, as a man whose grandfather was born in Hancock, and whose county had always stood by Hancock with regard to the charge that he was rich when he was sent to the war legislature. Judge Lawson said his parents were poor. He borrowed money to pay for his education, and at the time referred to, his possessions consisted of a law library and office. He said he was in the army the last fifteen months of the war, and was elected previously to the legislature by a unanimous vote of the soldiers; was re-elected after the war by them, and was nominated for congress in 1868. He believed he had done more good in the war legislature than at any other like period of his life. He said he did not join the alliance carlier because he was not eligible, but he was the legal advisor of Putnam alliance before he whose grandfather was born in Hancock, and the legal advisor of Putnam alliance before he joined it, and he joined as soon as all obstacles were removed. He said he had nothing to retract with regard to his speech on the Olive bill, and he quoted from Dr. Macune. of the alliance, to show that he and Dr. Macune were in accord concerning railroads. He wanted the railroads controlled by the railroad commission, and said if elected to congress he would make an opportunity to vote to give the interstate railroad commission as complete control over the railroads of the country as the Georgia. the legal advisor of Putnam alliance before he gia commission had over those of Georgia.
He then attacked Colonel Colley's railroad record. He said in 1886 Colonel Colley's railroad chairman of the senate railroad committee and a senator introduced a bill to destroy the railroad commission.

and a senator introduced a bill to destroy the railroad commission. Colley's committee recommended a bill, not materially different from this, the judge holding up the manuscript copy and read from it: "I recommend that this bill do pass. F. H. Colley."

Subsequently Colley made a speech in which he said the railroad commission was detrimental to the interests of the people; compared it with Russian despotism and said he would vote for its entire abolition rather than see it continue as it then existed. Later on, said Judge Lawson, Colonel Colley was one of a party who went on a happy excursion to Cuba at the expense of the railroads.

Here Judge Lawson's, time expired.

expense of the railroads.

Here Judgo Lawson's time expired.

Colonel Colley said the revised copy of his speech on the railroad commission did not contain some of the things Judge Lawson quoted; that there was nothing that he did that Northen, Carlton and others did not do, and that he had been opposed to the bill referred to, as it came from the committee. He alluded again to Judge Lawson's war record, and closed by criticising Judge Lawson's acts while a member of the constitutional convention in introducing an amendment which he (Colley) thought was not in the interest of the people.

The most reliable opinion is that Hancock is a Lawson county, but Colonel Colley and his friends are working hard, and they hope to change public sentiment.

On Saturday evening Miss Palmer's elocution class of young ladies will present the play of the Merchant of Venice.

The commencement sermon will be preached by Rev. Mr. Ivey, of Greenesboro, Ga., at the Baptist church. Special music for this occasion will be given by the choir, with Professor Samuel P. Snow as leader.

Sunday afternoon the annual meeting of the Martha Shorter Missionary society will occur, and a special address will be delivered.

The exhibition of the art work will be on Monday and Tuesday, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m., in the art hall.

In the art hall.

On Monday and Tuesday evenings the concert will be given. The music departments have been under the charge of Professor Henninges and Snow.

The graduation exercises on Wednesday morning will be unusually interesting. The reading of essays will be omitted, which will give more time for other features.

Colonel D. B. Hamilton, president of the board of trustees, will deliver the diplomas to the graduates, and John Temple Graves will deliver the address to the literary societies.

The Polymnian and Eunomian societies have issued invitations to their friends and the honorary members to a social reunion on Wednes-

ELECTRIC LINE FOR ALBANY.

Improvements at Georgia Chautauqua-Prices for Pelts.

Aleany, Ga., May 28.—[Special.]—An electric street railway will soon belt the city.

It is proposed to erect a handsome building, containing class-rooms for the various schools connected with the Georgia chautauqua. This edifice will be erected upon the lot owned by the assembly, corner of Pine and Jackson streets. The schools have been remarkably successful thus far and accomplished great good. At the next spring session they will likely open earlier and continue longer, with a much larger attendance throughout this entire section.

Pelts obtained from the forests of the Oaky Woods did not bring a very large price in the market. Coon skins sell for but five cents each. How changed these shrewd animals would feel could they know that their lives are sacrificed for the paltry sum of a nickel each.

Baby bears brought in by fortunate negroes from the fastnesses of these animals bring five dollars each and meet with ready sale. Fawns once brought to this market in great quantity, are now seldom seen. The deer are becoming exterminated with the rapid development of this section.

Death of Mr. Meyerhardt.

Death of Mr. Meyerhardt.

ROME, Ga., May 28.—[Special.]—Mr. D. J.

Meyerhardt died last night at 7 o'clock, at his home on Third avenue. His death came suddealy and the immediate cause was heart disease, but he has been feeble and unwell for sometime. He was one of Rome's most esteemed and venerable citizens. He came to our city in 1858, from Russia, where he was born sixty-nine years ago. His four living children are Judge Max Meyerhardt, Mr. Louis Meyerhardt, Miss Julia Meyerhardt and Mrs.
Janie Moses, of Oxford, Ala.

The Alliance Picnic. Boston, Ga., May 28.—[Special.]—The Farmers alliance gave their first picnic today at Philomathic park. Quite a large crowd was present and a good dinner served at 12:30 O'clook. COLONEL TIFT'S OFFER

To Present the City With a Lot for Water

To Present the City With a Lot for Waterworks and Loan Money.

ALBANY, Ga., May 23.—[Special.]—At the waterworks mass-meeting, held last night, Colonel Nelson Tift, founder of the city, in order to harmonize the different factions, offered to present the cfty with a lot on North street, 52½ by 210 feet, facing the sewer, to furnish water sufficient, to bore an artesian well, to guarantee that an eight-inch artesian well could be bored, a brick tower, one hundree feet high, erected with the large tank thereon, together with engine and pumps sufficient to elevate water, at a cost not exceeding $20,000, or as much less as possible, and to loan the city, if they needed it, in anticipation of taxes, money at seven per cent. This liberal offer was unanimously accepted, and it is hoped the proposed issue of $50,000 in bonds for this purpose, bearing 4 per cent interest, will be a woided, and the city remain free from an incubus of debt.

At the city council meeting this afternoon

At the city council meeting this afternoon Colonel Tift submitted his proposition. It was very favorably received, was submitted to the proper committee and will be acted upon tomorrow afternoon at a meeting called for the purpose, and will doubtless be accepted.

The Liver

When out of order, involves every organ of the body. Remedies for some other derange-ment are frequently taken without the least effect, because it is the liver which is the real source of the trouble, and until that is set right there can be no health, strength, or comfort in any part of the system. Mercury, in some form, is a common specific for a slug-gish liver; but a far safer and more effective

THAT VALUABLE 26-ROOM HOTEL

86 Ivy St., Between Houston and Wheat.

Here is central income property, almost in the very heart of the city, just what capitalists are looking for every day. It is always rented, and will forever pay a certain and handsome interest on a large amount of money. It is just one block from Pryor and Peachtree streets, and a few steps from the Kimball house and the union depot. Real estate has advanced in this vicinity at least 50 per cent in the last 60 days. A great deal of this block has been sold in the past few weeks upon which an immense expenditure of money will be made, during the present year. No part of Atlanta has been more sought after of late than this, simply because property here has been too low. Now is your time to buy central real estate, for parties with surplus funds are on the hunt for good, safe investments, and we all know Atlanta dirt beats anything in the world. Buy now, and reap the benefit of a certain increase in value. Attend the sale and look to your interest; many people miss bargains by their absence.

Richmond's Great Day.

All eyes are turned upon Richmond today. The streets of the historic old capital are thronged with confederate veterans, and with the beauty and chivalry of the south. The unveiling of the statue of Robert E.

Lee is a notable event. Such a tribute to one of the most illustrious of Americans stirs the country with a sympathetic thrill from the extremes of north and south.

The mists of prejudice no longer dim men's eyes, and loyal northerners in common with loyal southerners proudly claim a share in the splendid heritage of the shining name of the great Virginian who will stand in history by the side of Washington.

It is to be hoped that nothing will occur to mar the pleasure or blur the splendor of Richmond's great day. Such an occasion should be a jubilee.

John R. Gramling.

The death of John R. Gramling is a severe loss to Atlanta. Mr. Gramling was a model citizen, broadminded, progressive, liberal and public-He was a splendid type of the spirited. men who have built the Gate City, and contributed so much to her progress and prosperity. In all the relations of life, and in every circle that he entered, his admirable traits of character, his clear head and kind heart made him honored and beloved.

Taken away in the prime of useful manbood, his death will strike most of us as the untimely ending of a bright career, but such lives leave their lessons to carry on their good work.

The man dies, but his example still lives. There is a sad comfort in these words, but Atlanta will miss John R. Gramling for a long time to come, and she will mourn him as one of her best and truest sons.

Concerning Andrew Johnson.

The report that Benjamin F. Butler will, in his forthcoming volume of memoirs, attack Andrew Johnson, and charge him with a guilty knowledge of the assassination of Lincoln, needs verification.

General Butler is a man of strong prejudices, and when he is dealing with an enemy he is not likely to give quarter when he sees chance to smash him. But at this late day it will take very strong testimony to convince the American people that Andrew Johnson was one of Booth's silent partners.

It has been said that Wilkes Booth was the intimate friend of Johnson, and there is an old story to the effect that George W. Jones, of Tennessee, predicted when he heard of Johnson's nomination for the vicepresidency that he would secure the chief magistracy if only one life stood in the way. Jones's thorough knowledge of his man caused great weight to be attached to his words, but years afterwards he told a friend that he bitterly regretted his rash utterance. He said that he was firmly convinced of Johnson's innocence, and he worked hard to send him to the senate after the expiration of his presidential term.

Without new facts to change the record General Butler should let the matter rest Jones investigated the facts, and satisfied himself that he had done the great Tennes seean a serious injustice.

To revive this old charge so many years after the death of Johnson and the witnesses who knew the facts of the case cannot be justified. It is in General Butler's power to write a book of great interest and value, if he will stick to the truth of history, but a few chapters of wild romance, or a dash of partisan malignity, will spoil it all. It is to be hoped that there is no truth in the report.

Republican Pressure.

The Boston Advertiser, replying to, or, rather, commenting on, some remarks made in these columns recently, promises to think seriously of the facts that were therein pre The facts, however, although they are of the non-partisan variety, do not seem to sit comfortably on our contemporary's stomach, for, with a sigh, it goes on to remark:

But we opine that the ultimate judgment will be that the considerations mentioned by our contem-porary as the cause of the southern outrages are none of them fundamental, and that the real primary cause of the disturbed state of social and po itical affairs at the south is to be found in the fixed determination of southern white people to deny that the negro, whatever his mental and ormal worth is, or ever can be, capable of and de erving of, equal rights and privileges before th

Our esteemed contemporary states in conclusion that "the race question cannot be solved hastily, nor can it be solved through the medium of particular particular politics." We do not desire to impose upon the time and patience of the editor of THE CONSTITUTION, but if he will kindly point out Our esteemed contemporary states in conclusion what the solution of the race problem is believed to be in Atlanta, and how it may be promoted, or whether it is to be waited for Micawber like, to orn man, we shall then know something which the sence of which serves to prevent mutually profitable and general helpful discussion.

It will be observed that the Advertiser. instead of discussing the question from its particular standpoint, dodges it altogether, and hides behind an inquiry that its editor must know to be absurd and futile. It is curious how absurd a great editor can be en he desires to avoid discussion, or when he is anxious to keep it in the old partisan nannel. Perhaps the Advertiser can tell us en and how the nations of the earth are to e wholly christianized, or at least what the opinion of Boston is. We can tell our contemporary what the so Intion of the race problem is believed not to be, not only by people in Atlanta, but by nghtful people in Boston. The solution is believed not to be partisan, nor even polit ical in the ordinary meaning of that term. CLARRSON'S DECLARATION THAT the re-out of the gradual growth and development of the negro race, which, up to this time, have been greatly retarded by the policy of the republican party.

The Advertiser asks us how a solution of the problem can best be promoted. It is to be feared that the only possible reply to this inquiry will not be pleasing to our contem-porary. The best, indeed, the only way to promote the solution of the race problem i for the republican party to cease applying its partisan tactics and sectional policy to the question, and to regard it from the point of view of statesmanship and patriotism. Even under the most favorable conditions a great deal of patience and hopefulness will have to be exercised. We cannot expect the negro race to be more apt in qualifying itself for the duties of American citizenship than the white race has been, and it is for this reason that the partisan pressure brought to bear by republican politicians can only make for harm-can only obstruct and postpone the peaceable and equitable adjustment of the race question in its relations to both blacks and whites. As for the republican party, every thought ful person knows that a peaceable and an equitable adjustment of the race question is the last thing sought for by that organization. Such a result would leave the party no peg to hang its sectional policy on. For twenty years it has distinguished itself as the breeder not only of sectional, but of racial strife, and it is not by any means prepared to go out of that business just at this time.

This is Suggestive.

The Indianapolis Sentinel is generally fair and out-spoken newspaper, and condemns the wrong as valiantly as it upholds the right. In a recent editorial, with the caption, "Killing Niggers in Henry County,," it recites certain facts, in which the banner republican county of Indiana shows up badly.

Last winter, near New Castle, Indiana, an inoffensive negro named Ladd was murdered. He had, it was said, committed some trifling offense, for which he was pur sued by a mob, led by C. M. Lake, justice of the peace, and member of the republican central committee of Henry county, and though he made a desperate effort to escape and begged hard for his life, he was brutally shot to death. .The man, Lake, was indicted for the murder, but his trial, which has just ended, resulted in an acquittal We quote the following comments on this tragedy from the Indianapolis Sentinel: It was a brutal and wanton crime, and if it had been committed in the south, would have been the text of furious bloody-shirt harangues in congress, and of no end of inflammatory articles in the republican press. But as it occurred in the ban-ner republican county of Indiana—a county, which, in 1888, gave Harrison nearly twice a many votes as it gave Cleveland—the republican politicians and newspapers have ignored it. It thus appears that in the banner republican county of Indiana, "niggers" can be slaughtered with impunity. Ingalis, Chandler, Reed & Co. ought to set on foot a congressional inves-tigation. If they fail to make any move in that lirection, we hope that some of our democratic senators or representatives will take the matter up. The country ought to be put in possession of all the facts of this bloody business.

The Sentinel states that the people of Indiana were horrified by this murder, and are surprised and indignant at the acquittal of the man who committed it. All the facts in the case would certainly make interesting reading, but it is doubtful if the republican gentlemen appealed to will make any investigation. The party shows up badly enough in this particular instance as matters now Unfortunately, they can't lay this murder at the doors of the south, nor saddle it upon the democratic party.

Mr. Kennan Criticized

Mr. William Dunstan, who was a resident of Russia for thirty years and at present occupies the position of American vice-consulgeneral at St. Petersburg, is just now engaged in a war of words with Mr. George Kennan, whom he calls a sensationalist and a man given over to exaggeration. He has read Mr. Kennan's articles on the Russian convict system, and heard his lectures on the outrages practised in liberia, and he has taken up the cudgels in defense of the Russian government.

Mr. Dunstan says he has had "a better opportunity of observing conditions in Rusthan Mr. Kennan has had, as one might infer from his long residence in that country; that so far from the convicts in the Russian camps being treated inhumanly, they receive, many of them, better treatment than they deserve; that they are well clothed and well fed, and considering that they are for the most part anarchists of the worst type, they escape with lighter punishment than is meted out to the same class of offenders in this country.

Mr. Dunstan even says that the American colony in St. Petersburg utterly deprecrates Mr. Kennan's articles, which they know to be exaggerated. The czar, he says, is beloved by his people; that they dote on him, and cheer him to the echo whenever he appears on the streets; that he is not afraid of them, and frequently rides alone-or at tended by only a few troopers, in the most crowded thoroughfares.

There are two sides to every story, and Mr. Dunstan is seeking to place Mr. Kennan in a bad light by his. He claims to speak as an American, and for Americans, and close with the startling statement that the Russian prison system is no worse than that of

We should be glad to believe him, but Mr Kennan has written with so much earnestness, and given such convincing arguments of the truth of his narrative, having broken bread with the convicts and mingled with them in their work, and shared their misery in the gloom of liberian prisons, that Mr Dunstan cannot brush him aside with a hare statement like this. It will take more than a mere denial of such grave statements as Mr. Kennan has made to establish the reverse.

NORTHEN'S ADDRESS

TO THE VOTERS IN AND AROUND

He Charges Mr. Livingston and Editor Brown With Trying to Injure Him-He Announces His Platform.

THOMSON, Ga., May 28 .- [Special.]-Thom on was crowded with farmers from McDuffie, Warren, Burke and Walton today, all eager and anxious to hear Hon. W. J. Northen push his candidacy for governor.

His speech caught the crowd, and he was cheered enthusiastically and liberally. Mr. Northen spoke very plainly and very pointedly, and handled Mr. Livingston and Editor Brown without gloves. He asserted that these gentlemen, through themselves and their agencies, had organized a systematic attack upon him, and that they had been working industriously and laboriously to prejudice the minds of the people against him. In their work they had attempted to mutilate his record and had even assailed his private character.

"All of these charges," said Mr. Northen 'I can refute and their attempts to mutilate my record I can destroy.'

He then produced a record almost of his work. In it he made it apparent that he had agitated in speeches, made before the alliance was organized, some such movement among the agricultural people. He fully endorse the alliance platform and then took up the railroad commission.

"They say I wanted to destroy the railroad ommission," he said. He then asserted that the statement was untrue, and claimed that by his vote he was endeavoring to give the people greater protection by making an opportunity to appeal to a higher commission should men controlled by railroads be appointed. He then referred in complimentary words to Hon. Campbell Wallace Mr. Northen said that he was out and ou for the sub-treasuries and that he had often before endorsed them. He then went for Editor Brown, of the Southern Alliance Farmer. He arraigned the editor Farmer. He arraigned the editor for his unjust attacks upon him. He said that if his royal highness—editor of the Southern Alliance Farmer—wanted him to go about over the country arraying one class against another, he was not the man to do it. After Mr. Northen concluded, Hon. Thomas E. Watson made a brief speech, which was greatly enjoyed. Mr. Watson endorsed the alliance platform.

TROUBLE AT SIX MILE.

Negro Women Whipped by a Mob-The Negroes Threaten Vengeance.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 28 .- [Special.]-A rious race war is threatened at Six-Mile, a small town in Bibb county, fifty miles south west of this city. Yesterday four young ladies were walking along the principal street of the town, when they were met by three negro women-Dora Carter, Tillie Belcher and Mandy Johnson. The sidewalk was narrow, and both parties refused to make any room. The negro women then pushed the white women into the street, at the same time applying a number of vile epithets. Last night party of white men went to the houses of the three negro women and, dragging them from bed in their night-clothes, gave them a terrible flogging. One of them was beaten into insensibility, and all three of them were whipped in a brutal manner. This created great excitement among the negroes of the town, and at an early hour this morning negro men began to assemble on the streets and talk the matter over, at the same time threatening

They soon became demonstrative. The whites became alarmed and began to arm themselves. The negroes were ordered to disperse, but showed no inclination to do so until they were attacked by the whites and driven off the streets by force. Many of them showed fight, and for a time a bloody riot was the steament but the negroes being continuous. showed fight, and for a time a bloody riot was threatened, but the negroes being cutnum-bered and poorly armed, drew off to wait for reinforcements. All the negroes for ten miles around the town are gathering in the vicinity of Six-Mile, and today they telegraped several orders for guns and ammunition to this city. They are much excited and threatened to burn the town and kill every white man who attacks them. The town is guarded by 200 well-armed them. The latest reports from the town say the negroes are receiving guns and pistols and a conflict is expected before morning. The negroes are congregated in large numbers near the town, and it is thought they will make an attack tonight. The men who cowhided the three negro women, it is stated, wore masks, and the dispatches from there do not give their names.

A DANGEROUS RUNAWAY.

Dr. Duncan's Buggy Mashed Up and His Horse Hurt.

The runaway then tore on up Whitehall street at a dangerous speed. In front of the new building being erected between Mitchell and Hunter street, the wagon ran upon a pile of sand and turned over.

This halted the frightened animal for a moment. Just as he made another jump, Patrolman Chandler grabbed the bridle and prevented further disaster.

The street was crowded with vehicles, and much damage and probably loss of life would have resulted but for the stopping of the horse.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 28.—Earthquake shocks were felt here early yesterday. Fifteen occusants of a frame building at the Vandalia transfer yards experienced an unusual shock accompanied by a shaking of the building and a sound like the rushing of a volume of water beneath the building. The shock was followed by a second one and so on until nine distinct shocks were felt. A peculiar feature of the disturbance was its being heard by the yardmen some distance away from the building and they also thought they could discern a sound like the rushing of water.

The meeting was called to order at 11:30 o'clock this morning, by President G. R. McRea. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Secretary J. S. Davis, and adopted. Reports of committees were called for. The marketing committee had no report ready. It was moved that this committee be increased by the addition of one member from each shipping point, and that they retire and select a ssion-house in each city.

Here followed a spirited argument, it being feared that the members would not abide by their decisions and would ship to other houses The association, by a rising vote, unanimously pledged itself to abide by their selections, A recess was taken, allowing each sub-organization to select its representative for the committee, and fourteen names were handed in and added thereto.

COMMISSION HOUSES SELECTED. After the recess this committee reported forty names of commission houses three forty names of commission houses throughout the country, which were adopted. Upon motion, the marketing committee was structed to notify these men to obtain the lowest prices far handling the consignments; not to send out shipping agents and to keep the growers posted as to the state of the market. The executive committee was instructed to examine the reports, and at its discretion.

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY. A Large Attendance and Very Interesting Exercises Yesterday.

The attendance at the session of the Atlanta -Horticultural society yesterday was phenome-nally large for the season, and was marked by iderable interest.

considerable interest.

Among those exhibiting roses were: Mrs. R.
H. Huzza, Mrs. B. H. Austin, Mrs. C. K.
Maddox, Mrs. J. G. Hinds and Mr. M. Corrigan. Mrs. Huzza exhibited clematis; Mrs.
Huff, fuchias; Mr. James Burpitt, pinks; Mrs. J. C. McMillan, fish geraniums, begonias and ghost flowers; Mrs. B. H. Austin exhibited fine specimens of Henderson's Bill Nye and Pride of the West potatoes and Mrs. McMil-lan, teiephone peas, melon pears and egg lan, telephone peas, melon pears and egg plants.

Owing to the recent rains the display of strawberries was meager. Dr. Hape exhibited specimens of the Cumberland Triumph.

Mrs. A. W. Underwood, the energetic vice-president, who is an enthusiast on hortucultural subjects, and a strong factor of the society's success, electrified the meeting by the exhibition of a new strawberry, propagated by herself, which she has named "The Secretary." It grows in wild abandon on the sloping sides of Brockhaven, giving a roseate tint to the landscape and filling the ambient air with an appetizing aroma. The berry is luscious in the extreme and a beauty. Mrs. Underwood will give plants this fall to all who desire them. "The Secretary" is bound to take the cake.

Dr. S. Hape presented the subject of "Strawberries" in all its phases, ranging from the most practical to the most poetical, and was listened to with rapt attention.

The recent heavy rains having interfered with the work of the committee on general flower show, it was granted further time.

Mrs. Ross. A. Hanbury was requested to present a paper on fuchsias at the next meet-ing, and Mr. Burpitt one on chrysanthemums at the succeeding meeting.

An amendment to the constitution was proposed, which will come up for action at the next meeting. The office of general secretary is to take the place secretary is to take the practice of recording and corresponding secretaries and the general but two assistant secretaries aid the general secretary; one to conduct the correspondence, and the other to attend to the enrollment of exhibits and exhibitors. A seal is to provided for the use of the general secretary; a classified list of members is to be arranged by the general secretary, into wards or districts, and a vice-president selected for each ward or district. Committees will be appointed to visit the gardens of members and report.

GEORGIA GROCERS.

THEY ARE CLAMORING FOR LEGIS-LATIVE PROTECTION,

And Will Assail the Present Laws of Garnishment-A Convention of Delegates from Every Georgia City Called.

The grocers want protection. The grocers want protection.

They have been clamoring for it for several years at the hands of the Georgia legislature, and they are preparing to make a stronger effort than ever to get such legal protection as they claim is due them.

There is now an effort being made to organize a state grocers' association, and to send a delegation before the next legislature to sue for the passage of a bill that will be framed by the association in a general convention to be held in Atlanta soon.

There are already grocers' associations in Augusta, Savannah, Macon, Rome and Atlanta, and these will send delegates to Atlanta this summer, when a great convention of grocers and merchants will be held for the trocers and merchants will be held for the purpose of taking such steps as will promote the interests of this class of citizens.

It will be remembered that a bill was introduced in the last legislature whose purpose was to modify the garnishment laws of the state. It was a provise to section 3,554 of the code, and made that enactment read as follows:

lows:

All journeymen mechanics and day laborers, shall be exempt from the process and liabilities of garnishment, on their daily, weekly or monthly wages, whether in the hands of their employers or others; provided such wages do not exceed the sum of twenty-five dollars per month, but in all cases where such wages exceed that sum, the excess thereof shall be subject to garnishment. Section II.

Be it further enacted, that all laws or parts of laws, in conflict with this act, be and the same are hereby repealed.

This bill failed to be recommended by the judiciary committee by a vote of 7 to 9.

He Surrenders to the Sheriff for Work, but His Mother Pays His Fine. Yesterday morning John L. Conley ap-peared in the sheriff's office with a bundle of vearing apparel under his arm. He was ready to go to the penitentiary to work out his sentence of one year, rather than pay a fine of $6,000.

It will be remembered that Conley was un-der sentence for selling mortgaged property, the old Post-Appeal outfit.

The Constitution's readers are familiar with the details of Conley's sensational trial, his sentence, appeal for executive intervention, and finally the postponement of the execution of his sentence from last Wednesday until yesterday, in order that he might have time to raise the money to pay his fine, if he decided that way.

But he didn't, and yesterday he was ready to begin the first of his term.

Conley was aggravated when Sheriff Thomas informed him that his fine had been paid earlier in the day by Mr. W. J. Van Dyke.

When the sheriff explained that the fine had been paid at the instance of Conley's mother, Conley became angry. He said his mother, who is going on eighty years of age, was not at all able to bear the loss.

He wanted to work out his sentence—at five hundred dollars per month.

Finally Conley left the office a free man, closing the last chapter in one of the most noted cases that has eyer appeared on the Georgia records.

NEWNAN, Ga., May 28.—[Special.]—Anticipating a large gathering at Pearl Spring park upon the occasion of the policemen's picnic today, W. M. Cobler and J. H. Grantham, of Atlanta, secured the privilege of erecting a shooting gallery on the grounds. A Rattlesnake Killed.—A huge rattlesnake was killed by a negro boy at Grant park yesterday and brought to the city. It had six rattles, and was a monster in size. the privilege of erecting a shooting gallery on the grounds.

At 11 o'clock last night they loaded their outfit on a one-horse wagon and started from Atlanta through the country for Newman. A negro named John Bell accompanied them.

This morning the party stopped by the roadside just above Fowelville to get some water. Cobler and Grantham remained in the wagon, while the negro brought water from a well near at hand. Cobler was sitting on the front seat, with a parlor rifle lying across his lap. In changing his position, to take the cup of water extended him by the negro, the rifle slipped and struck the edge of the wagon body.

The gun was discharged, and, simultaneously with the report, the negro groaned and sank to the ground.

A Prominent Altorney.—Mr. George Dudley Thomas, of Athens, was in Atlanta yesterday on legal business. Mr. Thomas, besides being one of the most prominent lawyers in Georgia, is president of the Athens Publishing company, the company that owns the famous Athens Banner.

From Fort Worth.—Dr. and Mrs. Stainback Wilson have just returned from the Southern Baptist convention, Fort Worth, Texas, having stopped over in Mobile, Ala., with their daughter, Mrs. W. J. Hudson. They will remain for awhile at the Grant house, till their new house is fin-

Postal Clerk Examinations.—The examination held by the post-office board on the 17th instant, for postal clerks and carriers, according to the civil service reform tactics, resulted yesterday in the appointment of the following successful applicants: Clerks—R. E. Wilson, Charles M. White, Jr., W. C. Goza, William G. Leas, Wilber H. Close, Carrier—Thomas C. Cottin.

A Successful Sale. J. C. Hendrix & Co. sold at auction yesterday afternoon the old plow factory site, on Bartow street, to Augustus Fleish for fifty-three hundred dollars. Quite a crowd attended the sale, including a number of Atlanta's strong capitalists.

The Slaughter Pen Case.—The slaughter pen case was concluded before the board of health last evening and the decision will be rendered in a few days. The argument on this question has lasted several days and the decision will be looked forward to with much interest, as it is an important one.

Fire at the State Shops.—Yesterday afternoon there was a small fire at the Western and Atlantic shops. The alarm was sent in about 6 o'clock from box 25. At the time the blaze was large enough to occasion considerable excitement. The fire was located in an old shed, used as a sand-house, and the damage amounted to almost nothing. The quick work of the department prevented what might have been a serious conflagration.

Hats, Hats, Hats.—The house of Ives & Bonar, of New York, is represented here by Mr. W. T. Bell, better known as Billy Bell, who is at the Markham with a full line of hats and caps of every variety and description. Mr. Bell is introducing a late style hat that he calls "Grady's Atlanta Constitution," in compliment to Mr. Grady and THE CONSTITUTION. He has a style he calls the New York Herald, and another the Sun. Mr. Bell has many friends in the south, and always does a fine business.

On a Furlough.—Dr. W. E. Fonte, station-house keeper, left for Nashville yesterday on a five days' leave of absence. Dr. Foute goes to Nashville to attend the graduating exercises of the Peabody Normal institute, his daughter being

A Wild Cat at Large.—Yesterday afternoon considerable excitement was caused by the rumor that one of the wild cats at Grant park had gotten out of its cage and was rumning loose over the country. Keeper Mavens said last night that the rumor was started as a joke on him, because he was known to be out of the city. He telephoned from the park that everything was "O. K.," and Park Policeman Cochran brought in word that the wild cats were both in their cages, all right.

Wanted Bloodhounds.—Chief Connolly received a telegram from B. F. Overby, of Watkinsville, last night asking him to send bloodhounds to that place immediately. The telegram stated that the hounds were wanted to run down an assassin, but beyond this gave no particulars.

Beer Burglars.—A little after 12 o'clock last night Patrolman Harper found the door leading to the storehouse of the Atlanta City Brewing company, on Wall street, standing open. The padlock had been broken off and was lying on the pavement. A window was also broken. The work had evidently been done by thirsty beer gurglers in search of the wherewithal to slake their thirst, as there was nothing in the warehouse but kegs of beer. Seven kegs were found all right, but it is not known how many were made way with.

He Did the Honors.—Colonel Wilcoxson, presidence of the Pearl Bank company, was one of the prominent figures at the police picnic yesterday. Colonel Wilcoxson did all he could to make the picknickers have a good time. Chief Connolly was delighted with his attentions to him and his men.

THEY HAVE A GAY TIME IN WOODS YESTERDAY.

Almost a Fatal Accident to Baloonist Havens-He Catches in a Tree and Has a Narrow Escape.

The police picnic was a great success. Eleven coaches were crowded with the olicemen and their friends, when the West Point train pulled away from the car shed at 8 o'clock vesterdah morning.

W. Havens, keeper of the Grant park Zoo, furnished the sensation of the day. He came near meeting with a fatal accident in his balloon ascension.

The particulars of his narrow escape are

The morning was beautiful-just such a morning, sunshiny and fresh, as makes a life seem the better for the creation of picnics.

All the way the blue-coated policemen, with their natty, new straw hats, kept the train lively with their good humor. They cracked jokes with one another, made love to their wives-and some of them to their sweet-hearts-and romped with the children.

Decidedly, an Atlanta policeman is an interesting character when you turn him loose for a day's frolic in the woods.

At all times he is worthy of more than a sidelong glance. But a la picnic he is at his best-in his element, as it were.

The more you know him—not in the line of his business, however—the better you are sure to like him. This is especially applicable when he is a-picnicking.

All along the route the denizens of the surrounding country were gathered in knots to send a cheer and a kindly greeting after the

It was a delightful ride. The West Point It was a delightful ride. The West Point people recognizing the character of the occasion exerted themselves to aid in the day's pleasure. The Zouave band was there.

During the trip, several delightful selections were played, and soon after reaching the grounds, the fiddle took the place of the horn and lively dancing-music was struck up.

Several hundred people from Newnan and the country around were on hand when the special picnic train arrived.

A big barbecue was in process, und the arriving crowd found plenty of clear, cool spring water with lemonade and various and sundry other picnic accessories conveniently at ever before.

tieipated. It was dramatic, thrilling, interesting.

But for his remarkable presence of mind Keeper Havens would have been brought back to Atlanta badly maimed, if not lifeless.

As it was, he bears severe marks of his painful and dangerous experience. His hands are lacerated and his face and neck badly cut and scratched, while his body is so bruised as to almost disable him.

Here is how it happened:
The balloon was pitched about two hundred yards from the lake, between two pine sapplings. These sapplings stood out a short distance from a thicket. They afforded the only available mooring for the balloon while it was undergoing inflation.

When the balloon was released by those who held the guy ropes it shot upward like an ar-

When the balloon was released by those who held the guy ropes it shot upward like an arrow. Mr. Havens was hanging from a crossbar by his hands when the air-ship left the ground. When it reached a height of about twenty or thirty feet he suddenly loosed his hand-hold, at the same time catching the cross-bar with his legs and with his head hanging down and his heels toward the sky he proceeded in his upward flight to the clouds.

All went well until the balloon cleared the tops of the tall pines in the grove near by. At this height, before the man on the underhanging bar had gotten out of their reach, the wind caught the balloon and carried it swiftly in the direction of the woods.

Before Mr. Havens realized his danger, his head and feet struck the top of the bordering pines. The shock knocked one of his legs off the bar, leaving him hanging with a single head.

hold.

This did not stop the course of the balloon, but retarded its upward flight. Another gust of wind whirled it onward, and the balloonist was dragged through another tall pine tree.

In desperation he clutched at the branches, and, holding on, he brought the balloon to a stand-still. His one leg was still swung over the trapeze bar and his head hid from sight in the bayers of the pine trees.

After recovering, Mr. Havens reached up to the bar with one hand and, with a quick movement, released his leg-clutch, dropping in an upright position, with one hand holding to the balloon bar and the other, assisted by his legs, holding fast to the pine tree.

This position was continued until the hot air had escaped from the balloon, and it began to fall toward the ground.

All this time the excitement in the crowd was intense. The balloonist's peril was thrilling. The tree was very tall, and so slim that it apparently could not bear the weight of the balloonist, even if he was not dragged from his lodging place and hurled to the ground by the fluttering air-ship.

When Mr. Havens let go the trapeze bar, his weight bent the top of the pine tree almost to breaking. A fall from such a height would hardly have failed to prove fatal.

"I AM NOT THE LEECH." A Telegram from Washington to an After-

An afternoon paper printed in Atlanta published a special yesterday afternoon from Washington, saying:
The contractors for rebuilding the Atlanta custom-house, Thomas & Driscoll, of this city, are moving everything handy to get an extension of time for the completion of their work.
Mr. Windom is reported to be in the sulks about it, and the supposition is the government supervising architect has worked him is to this frame of mind.

mind.

It seems that the architect is against the extension, and his opposition is based on a disinclination to continue the fat salaries paid a lot of political idlers who have swarmed about the job from the start.

It is thought that if he could rid himself of these leeches he would regard Thompson & Driscoll's application with more favor.

these leeches he would regard Thompson & Driscoll's application with more favor.

Mr. Hugh Angier, superintendent of the construction, does not like the telegram and asks for the publication of the following card:

ATLANTA, Ga., May 27.—Editors Constistion—Dear Sir: The enclosed slip, which I have cut from the Journal, issue of this date, thoughtessly does me an injustice, and I trust that the news sent by their Washington correspondent is uniformly more reliable than this, from the fact that I am the only "lot of political idlers" paid by the government on this work, and am, perhaps, the only superintendent in the land without a foreman or clerk, and the salary is by no means a fat one; and the supervising architect can discharge a superintendent at a moment's notice, consequently I am not the "leech" in the way of his granting or not the application of Messrs. Thomas & Driscoll for an extension of time. To have done more than I have worked as a release from their contract obligations to the United States; as it is, the contractors will do as much work in eighteen months, as was done in five years in completing the original building. Respectfully, Forty of the prettiest lots have been selected and specially graded and terraced for this sale. The nine-mile Highland avenue and Piedmont electric railroad circuit traverses this entire tract.

ABLE FOR KILLING COWS The Chief Inspector's Report-Mayor Glenn' Investigation Unfolds Some Revelations in the Cow-Killing Case.

That cow-poisoning story has a sequel. now turns up that several small boys are countable for the deadly dose that killed the cows.

The complaint made by the owner of the cattle to Mayor Glenn prompted him to order an investigation of the causes that led to the oisoning. The investigation was made yesterday by Chief Inspector Thomas E. Veal.

The result unfolds an interesting story.

It appears that some small boys found the mknown powders on the city's dumping grounds, and thinking it was salt seized upon it and ate some lemons weil-seasoned with it. The result is shown in the city inspector's report to Mayor Glenn. THE INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

OFFICE CHIEF SANITARY INSPECTOR, ATLANTA, have been poisoned by garbage heing dumped on the alley in rear of the old capitol a quantity of ruibish which had been deposited there by worknen employed by Mr. A. J. Miller, who is having the old capitol cleaned out.

By investigation, I find that this load of garbage contained a number of small pasteboard-boxes, marked "Texas Cotton Worm Destroyer," and labeled poison. The cart-man, not knowing they contained poison, carried them to the city dumping ground, the proper place for dumping garbage.

Afterwards a crowd of boys who gather around this dimuping ground for the purpose of seeing what they can find of value picked up some poli lemons, and thinking the boxes contained sait, started home cating the powder with the lemons.

When they reached Mayson and Turner's ferry when they reached Mayson and Turner's ferry

The dumping ground is enclosed, and if the powders had been left were it was dumped, it would have caused no trouble. Therewith enclose a statement from Mr. A. J. Miller, also one from Inspector Cain, of fourth district. Very respectfully,

Mr. Miller's card explained fully how the powder was put in the alley by the employes at the old capitol, not knowing that it was poison.

republican after the war.

To a Constitution reporter, who eucountered him yesterday, he said:

"I am not holding any office under the administration. The reason I am not, as I think, is because I have made no particular effort to be appointed to office in Georgia. It is possible, and even probable, however, that in this I may be mistaken. I feel that I am not entirely in accord with the administration in the course it is pursuing in the matter of appointments to office in this state. I was, and am, of the opinion that the president ought to appoint such republicans, without regard to race or color, as would give to the ought to appoint such republicans, without regard to race or color, as would give to the patrons of the offices they are appointed to fill, the best service and greatest degree of satisfaction. This, in many instances, has been utterly ignored, and apparently the very opposite sought to be done."

"What do you think prompts the administration in adopting its extreme course toward the south?"

Whether the object sought to be attained

"Whether the object sought to be attained by this course has been to drive the people to deeds of desperation and violence in order to all the more solidify the north against the south, at present, I am not prepared to say. But I am sure of this one thing—no office-holder wants the republican party in Georgia, as small as it is, to be any larger."

"What is Mr. Harrison's attitude?"

"Mr. Harrison evidently, in the beginning, intended to be, in reality, the president of the whole country. His aims were of the purest and most lofty character; but, alas! for peor human nature, the pressure was too much for him, and now he simply records and executes the will of the very worst element of both political parties. What the outcome of all this is to be, God only knows. In and through it all I certainly counsel peace, forbearance, patience, good will and, above all things else, an honest, vigorous enforcement of all the laws, state and national, looking ever to the fullest protection to life and property."

"What is your position concerning the next looking ever to the fullest protection to life and property."

"What is your position concerning the next republican nomination?"
"I was a delegate in 1876 to the national convention, held at Cincinnati, and voted for Hon. James G. Blaine, and was chairman of the Georgia delegation at Chicago in 1880, voting thirty-six times for Hon. John Sherman. Senator Sherman is still my choice for president; but if we can't get him, give us the man with backbone—Hon. Thomas B. Reed, of Maine."

I have myself used, and known others to use Bull's Sarsaparilla with entire satisfaction. I believe it calculated to relieve much suffer-ing and earnestly recommend it to the afflicted. —Rev. E. W. Sehon, Louisville, Ky,

THE STATEMENT OF THE ATLANTA NATIONAL BANK

a Source of Gratification to Every Atlantian—It Is Complimented by the Bankers' Journal.

The Atlanta National bank this morning presents to the public through THE CONSTI-TUTION, its statement, in accordance with a equest from the comptroller.

It is a statement, too, of which every Atantian should feel proud. The report contains many interesting features features showing the solidity of the institution and the sagacity of the gentlemen handling The individual deposits are shown to be $1,-

The surplus and profits are $251,341.50.

The surplus and profits are $201,341.50.

No bank in the south with a capital of $110,000 hits ever inade a better showing.

The officials of the bank are prond of the record made by the figures. They are proud, too, of a compliment paid them by Rhodes's Journal of Banking—a journal which is recognized as an authority among bankers the world over. In the May issue of that journal is a tabulated article taken from the report of the comptroller of the currency. In it the strong banks of the country are grouped in the order of their strength, the rank being determined by the propertion of the surplus, and undivided profits to the capital. The Journal declares the showing is one of which every American should feel proud.

There are 3,319 national banks in the United States, and out of that number 239 have as much surplus, or more, as capital.

That 239 is led, of course, by the Chemical National bank of New York city.

No. 80 in the list is the Atlanta National bank.

In the 239 are three Georgia banks—the

In the 230 are three Georgia banks—the National Bank of Athens, and the First National Bank of Newman, being two of the three.

Colonel Wash Roach, attorney-at-law, 132.
Broughton street, Savannah, Ga., says that he has for five years suffered with severe stricture and ulceration of the rectum. After having tried many of the most eminent physicians in Georgia, and having traveled nearly all over the country in search of health, I found no relief until I put myself under Dr. W. J. Tucker, and in the short space of three moths I find myself nearly well.

Mrs. H. P. Stevens, an estimable lady of Waycross, Ga., says: Five years ago I was given up to die by the best physicians of southeast Georgia, all of whom said I could not live but a few weeks. As the last resort I determined to try Dr. W. J. Tucker, of Atlanta, Ga. In less than three months the doctor had me restored to health. I am confident I would have died had it not been for his marvelous skill.

W. H. Phillips, Simsboro, I.a., says: I have suffered for ten years with liver disease and chronic diarrhoea, and after being treated by Dr. W. J. Tucker a very short time am almost entirely well.

Dr. Fred B. Palmer, Atlanta, Ga., one of the best known and most nopular druggists of Georgia, and also himself a physician, suffered for many years with piles, was cured by Dr. W. J. Tucker and remains perfectly well.

Mrs. J. H. Seme, Dawson, Ga., says: I have experienced the most remarkable benefit from Dr. W. J. Tucker's treatment, gained fifteen or twenty bounds in the last few months. I advise all suffering ladies to give him a trial.

Hon. E. E. Foy, Egypt, Ga., says ne suffered for many years with a chronic malady, was cured by Dr. W. J. Tucker three years ago, and loses no opportunity to tell the afflicted of Dr. Tucker's kill

GILT-EDGE LOTS IN MARIETTA!

I HAVE PURCHASED IN AND ADJOINING the western part of Marietta 110 acres of land. This presents a front of 2,000 feet in the city, parallel to the Western and Atlantic railroad, and less than 500 yards distant from it.

This property includes the famous GOVERNOR McDONALD HOMESTEAD, noted as being one of the most beautiful in the south.

There are TWO MINERAL SPRINGS on the property, besides several freestone springs.

From almost every point on it is a splendid view of KENNESAW MOUNTAIN.

I have platted about fifty acres of this, and opened and graded the following:
CLEBURNE BOULEVARD, 150 feet wide, with four rows of trees down the middle, and a row by each sidewalk.

BROWN BOULEVARD, 100 feet wide, with two rows of trees between each sidewalk and the driveway.

JOHNSTON STREIT, 56 feet wide.

WAITHAIL STREIT, 50 feet wide.

All of which are shown on plat.

Besides these, the fashionable Whitlock avenue runs along the southern border of the property.

I have also opened a beautiful park, which is thickly covered with timber.

That portion of the park bounded by Polk, Waithail and Johnston streets and Cleburne Boulevard, as shown on plat, will be left as a park for fifteen years from June 1, 1890, then to revert to me or my heirs. That portion of it lying nerth of Folk street and west of Cleburne Boulevard, as shown on plat, will be left as a permanent park for the purchaers of the lots shown on plat and their heirs and assigns and my heirs and assigns and others whom the majority of them will admit, on condition that the purchaers and their heirs and assigns, or other citizens of Marietta, will spend at least $30 per annum in keeping it in good order; otherwise it will revert to me or my heirs.

The part platted includes 88 LOTS, of which 21 are covered with fine trees.

THE SALE OF 20 FINE LOTS of this property will occur in Marietta within the part few days deta to be Carpibled later.

FOREIGN CAPITALISTS.

THEY VISIT ATLANTA WITH A VIEW TO INVESTING MONEY.

Well Received in the Gate City—A Banque to Them at the Kimball Tonight—The Purpose of Their Tour.

A company of foreign capitalists.

They came to Atlanta with great purposes.

The gates of the city are wide open to them, and they will be treated right royally here. It is a delegation of stockholders of the Equitable Mortgage association and representatives of some of the largest financial and investment houses of Great Britain and Europe.

The gentlemen came to Atlanta yesterday in their private car, over the Richmond and Danville from Washington, where they were treated with royal hospitality by the Washing-ton stockholders of their company.

Ten of the capitalists came over from Europe ton stockholders of their company.

Ten of the capitalists came over from Europe and were joined in Boston by eight others, forming a huge party of financiers, who are traveling through the south and west seeking the best openings for investment.

The party consists of Charles N. Fowler, of New York, president of the Equitable Mortgage association; C. B. Wilkinson, of Philadelphia, vice-president; J. A. H. Mac Nair, of London, the English manager; W. Annecke, of Berlin; A. Phillips, of Amsterdam; H. Bankin, of London; Mr. MacIntosh, of Montreal; John Kenion, of Liverpool; Charles Birchell, representative of the Liverpool Journal of Commerce, the principal commercial paper in England; John Erskine Guild, of Edinburgh; W. B. Louson, of Belfast; Mr. Norton, of Huddersfield, and Messrs. C. E. Stevens, of Worcester; S. R. Bertron, of Boston; C. Bacon, of Middletown; H. F. Richards, of Providence; Calder, of New York, and Chester, of Albany.

Upon their arrival in Atlanta, Mr. W. A. Hemphill, president of the Atlanta Trust and Banking company, met them at the value of the property and entertained them as his Banking company, met them at the union depot and entertained them as his guests at the Kimball with an early dinner.

There were a number of local stockholders of the Atlanta Trust and Banking company present at the dinner, besides Mr. W. A. Hemphill, who joined the party immediately after dinner for Americus.

WHO THEY ARE.

The gentlemen who compose this party are among the most prominent capitalists and investors in Europe and America.

They are on a tour of the south and west looking closely into the advantages and resources of the farm and mineral lands in these sections.

They will go as far west as Denver and will return to Boston by Chicago. During this tour they will visit every principal city and town throughout the south, and will loose no efforts throughout the south, and will loose no efforts to become thoroughly acquainted with the country in their way.

Some thirty days or more will be consumed by a close examination of the territory to be covered, with a view to advocating the placing of large amounts of foreign capital in the near future. The Equitable Mortgage association is an American corporation, with an enormous capital. The organization has placed nearly $10,000,000 in southern and western farm mortgages.

The association owns an interest in the Atlanta Trust and Banking company, and the members of this company will extend the capitalists a bit of their royal hospitality before they continue on their tour.

HIS important feature, together with the best grades of Cloths, and finest qualities of trimmings, are to be found in every garment we sell.

WHY WE CAN GUARANTEE THIS

Because we get our material direct from the manufacturers---cloths, trimmings, and everything---thereby get the best at the lowest prices. We employ the best skill to design our garments, and they are made by the best workmen. There is no other cost or profit to add to this, as the garment is put on our counters direct from the workman's bench. Consequently, when you buy from us you pay but one profit; when you buy from others you pay three profits---namely, the manufacturers' profit, the jobbers' profit, and the retailers' profit. GEORGIA RAILROADS.

IBE WAYCROSS AIR-LINE IS HEAD-ING ON TOWARDS BRUNSWICK.

About the Macon Construction Company-Colonel McEvoy Talks—The Smithonia

and Dunlap-Other Gossip.

The Georgia road is going to build a new

THE CONSTITUTION correspondent there writes: The Georgia railroad, it is said on reliable authority, will commence in a few days the erection of a new depot at our place.

Our people are very much rejoiced over the prospect, and will certainly appreciate it when

The Brunswick Times says of this road:

The road is now being built from Wayeross to Fort Valley, via Cordele. Branches will be built to Abbeville, Haz'churst and Hawkinsville.

The cotopany which has undertaken to build the road is one composed of men of money. The following compose the company: Stilwell, Milen and company, of Savamah; L. R. Milien and company, of Vayeross Lumber company, of Wayeross; S. L. Johnson, general manager, J. L. Swet, attorney.

The main line to Fort Valley has already been surveyed as far as Cordele, and the surveying corps is at work at present between Cordele and Fort Valley. Therry miles of the road are already complete. Both passenger and freight trains are doing a flourishing business. The men who are mishing the road want a short through line from Knoxville, Tenn., to Brunswick and Jacksonville. The charter of the company is a very liberal one. Ten acres of land have been given to the company at Wayeross for the erection of terminal facilities. Work on a large depot and shops will commence at that place soon. A large English syndicate has offered to issue any amount of bonds to the company at a legitimate rate.

Colonel Machen's Road.

The Middle Georgia and Atlantic now has about 1,800 hands at work, with a weekly payroll of about $5,000. The force is divided—part at Ellabelle and part near Eatonton; at the former place coming towards Swainsboro. They have some six miles graded, and will have track laid into Eatonton within the next two weeks.

Macon and Savanuah. The Savannah Times says:

Macon and Savannah.

The Savannah Times says:

An engineer corps of the Macon Construction company reached Savannah this morning. Mr. W. H. Wells, the chief engineer, sent them back over the Central. They will go to the point from which they started and begin locating in this direction on the preliminary line. This corps started at a point about 100 miles west of Savannah. Another corps started from Macon and worked this way. The country along the Oemulgee is rough, and the engineers were s.ow getting out from the river.

The other corps moved rapidly, and made ninety miles in seventy working hours. Mr Wells says that their contracts are practically let. He means that the contractors who are building the Birmingham extension will do the work on this end of the line. They graded 100 miles west of Macon in four months through rough country, and the Macon Construction company is well satisfied with their work.

"Oh we are coming here," Mr. Wells said. "In fact, we are indeed bound to build to Savannah, and we will have a locomotive running from Macon to Savannah this time next year."

Asked if he feared much trouble in getting a terminal here, Mr. Wells said that he was all right on that point, and has found a way that he can get into Savannah and to a good river front for much less than he had expected.

Smithonia and Dunlap.

Smithonia and Dunlap. Ever since Colonel James M. Smith built a railroad to connect his place, since named Smithonia, with the Georgia railroad, there have ever and anon been conjectures that he would eventually extend it not only a few miles, but on to Augusta or to some other road to afford him a direct route to the sepheard mies, but on to Augusta or to some other road to afford him a direct route to the seaboard. It is stated now on good authority that there will be a meeting of the incorporators of the Smithonia and Dunlap railroad at the first named place on Monday next, the object of the meeting being to discuss the extension of the road not only to Sandy Cross, but on via Mallorysville and Lincolnton, either to Augusta direct or, to connect with a road just over in Carolina from Lincolnton and over it to Augusta. There is no doubt but that the decision of the incorporators to meet will be to go right ahead with the extension, and that books for subscription to the capital stock will be opened at once, and a canvass for subscriptions be begun as soon as practicable. It is the intention of Colonel Smith to begin work on the road as soon as the mrvey can be made and grading forces can be regainzed. In fact, a surveying corps is already on the ground, and Colonel Smith has done several miles of grading in the direction the road is to run.

Colonel Smith is already working more as to afford him a direct route to the seaboard the read is to run.

Colonel Smith is already working upon a connection of his road with the Georgia, Carolina and Northern, which will be running to Athens by the end of the year. This, with its connection with the Georgia railroad, gives the projected road feeders leading ont in all directions.

MACON CITY COUNCIL.

Important Business Done by it Last Night.

Macon, Ga., May 27.—[Special.]—At the meeting of the city council tonight the following important business was transacted: The fifty acres of land offered the city for a park by Messrs. J. C. It will be converted into an elegant park, and street car lines will be run to it.

The contract with the Metropolitan Street Railway company was passed upon and ordered signed. Work will begin on this line at once.

The contract with the Macon and Dublin railroad was also ordered signed. This was for the 200 feet right-of-way for an entrance for this road into the city.

The contract with the Covington and Macon railroad for eight acres of the city reserve was railroad.

renewed.

THE STENOGRAPHER CAUGHT. ome Compromising Proceedings in Charles

Charleston, S. C., May 28.—[Special.]—Society in Charleston has been greatly shocked recently by an article published in a New York newspaper, Town Topics by name, which contained a horrible scandal, involving one of the most aristocratic families in the city, the lady being a native of New Orleans.

Today another scandal has come to light. A man named Link, who manages a short-hand school at 96 Broad street, came here recently. The short-hand school was incorporated, and it had lots of female scholars.

On Saturday night, the police discovered a light in the residence at 96 Broad street, the first floor of which was occupied by the short-hand school. It was known that the occupants of the upper floors were out of the city, and the police forced an entrance. They found the short-hand professor in one of the rooms in company with one of his pupils, and in a very compromising situation.

Link was taken to the police station, and the girl was detained on the premises and finally turned over to her parents, who belong to the upper circles of society. The strangost part of the story is the fact that Link was released, and that he is said to be still in the city and alive. The stenggraphic professor is a married man, and has done short-hand work for one of the city papers. The affair has caused quitea sensation in social circles. sensation in social circles.

Chronic Ill-Health.

Chronic III-Health.

How many pass through life never knowing what it means to feel well. How many continue to exist who would gladly lay down and rest forever. With some it requires more courage to live than to die. They live for those they love. They live to be a protection and provide for helpless little ones. Ah! sad it is when a kind parent is afficied with aches and pains, nervousness, weakness, dyspepsia, etc. And yet, is not a parent to blame who will thus suffer, when means of relief are right at hand. Many who long suffered in a state of chronic ill-health, whose lives were made miserable by their feelings of distress, and who found no relief from doctors, have quietly begun a use of Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla, and found health and strength therein. A word to the wise is sufficient. Demand this remedy of your druggist. Take no other.

Scene-First Dinner to the Family Physican by Young Married Couple.

Scene—First Dinner to the Family Physican by Young Married Couple.

Family Physician—Do you know, there seems to be a natural flavor about this food that is most appetizing? What method do you use in cooking it?

Lady Of this House—Well, Doctor, when I was at home, my mother would have no other than a Churter Onk Stove. From my earliest recollection I remembered how she would praise and her cooking was superb. So when we were married I insisted on having the same kind of love. Of course the improvements made on them since mother bought hers, are most wonderful. Ours has all the latest, including the Wire Gauze Oren Doors. I don't understand the process exactly, but they tell me that all meats cooked in ovens with these doors, retain their juices and flavors to a much greater degree than by any other means. Can you explain the theory, Charles?

Charles (the Husband)—I can't remember fill that was told me, but I know the Doctor can give a most clear and scientific statement of the reasons can, an other bound of the charter Oak Stoves. But as I have one in my kitchen, and know something about it, I think I can enlighten you. Of course it would take quite a long lecture to explain everything to you scientifically, and we have not time for that. Count Rumford an An erican, who was Knighted in Europe for his scientific attainments, pointed out, nearly a hundred years ago, that baking and roasting meats in air tight ovens was wrong, and he proved it by actual experiments. He asserted that it was as essential to health that our food should be cooked in pure, fresh air as that we should breathe pure, fresh air, and that air-tight ovens render the air impure, and as food cooked therein became tainted and unhealthy. But how to properly ventilate the oven was not discovered for many years after Count Rumford's time. The difficulty was to allow fresh air to enter the oven uniformly without cooling it perceptibly, and this has been accomplished by Mr. Filley's invention of the Wire Gauze Oven Door. The air enters the oven th

NEW YORK, May 28.—There is in Wall street a growing feeling against trusts, or, at least, against permitting trading at the board in certificates of those organizations, uncertainty as to their real value at any time, and doubt in some cases as to whether they have any value at all, being regarded, and with good grounds, as injurious to specaltation in railroad stocks. It is certain that, from the first, industrial stocks have been an unsettling element in the market and the printingle against. element in the market, and the prejudice against them is growing rapidly. At present, however, they have not the power to injure the value of good railroad shares that they had three or four years ago, and the events of today are an exempliyears ago, and the events of today are as a fection of that fact.

The market today showed a firm front, with a moderate degree of activity until the announcement, toward 1 o'clock p. m., that a receiver had been appointed for Chicago Gas, in the suit of Charlton, who is owner of only ten shares of the stock. The stock of the Chicago Gas company was immediately attacked, and the price rattled off seven per cent in the space of a little over an hour. With close sympathy in sugar refineries, such a drop could not fail to have some depressing effect upon the regular list, but it extended only to fractions. The opportune announcement that all the roads, except St. Paul, had agreed to restore rates, effected a complete revulsion of temper all the roads, except St. Paul, had agreed to restore rates, effected a complete revulsion of temper in granger stocks, and they were immediately advanced to still higher figures than before the break in trusts. The rally in the general list was followed by a recovery in trusts, but they finally shook themselves loose entirely from the rest of the market, and Chicago Gas again touched the lowest price, while sugar continued to decline until its extreme loss was equal to that in Chicago Gas. Other industrial stocks sympathized to only a limited extent. The opening was strong, and, under the influence of good buying by commission houses, together with some orders from London and outside centers, the hesitating temper of yesterday entirely disappeared, and prices moved up terday entirely disappeared, and prices moved up steadily, though slowly, during the entire forenoon, Pacific Mail was a marked exception, showing a sharp gain of about 1½ per cent, and among the specialties, Citizens' Gas' displayed like strength. The activity and a steady advance in Vanderbilt's was also regarded as indicative of a strong foun-dation under the market and Reading, Atchison and the Grangers came to the front, while the business done was much more evenly distributed than usual of late. The break in trusts disturbed and the highest figures of the day generally were reached toward delivery hour. After that time, however, selling became more pronounced and the close rather heavy at something off from the best figures and with trusts at their lowest. Sales of listed aggregated 41,000 shares, unlisted 100,000. Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, May 28—Special J—The Liverpool market this morning opened at an advance of 3-64d over the prices on Friday last, being called firm for the near positions. The close showed a further advance of 2-64d. The holiday in Manchester still continues, but spot sales in Liverpool was regarded as barely adequate to the buoyancy of New York during the holidays, and the opening here was distinctly weak at 1@2 points under last evening's figures. The cotton offering was, however, quickly absorbed, and by 11 o'clock August had sold at 12.63. From this time out, however, the market was feverish and unsettled, and gradually sold down, closing at the lowest prices of the day. The trading today has mainly centered in August, July being comparatively weak; and, while the traders are utterly at sea as to the object of the analypulation which scenars to be in progress, there is a growing feeling that the market has done its best for the present. The July short interest is undoubtedly largely liquidated, and the trading in August today showed clearly that the outsiders were for the most part the bolts in that month. Port receipts are increasing, and for the week promise to exceed last year. Crop accounts continue to improve, and from Texas we are advised that picking will probably commence August 34.

MADDOX, RUCKER & CO., BANKERS.

Having added $50,000 to our banking property, we are now arranging to move our office on the corner of our block, where we will be in a more prominent position, with better facilities, and we now propose to give more attention to the banking department of our business.

We solicit the accounts of banks, merchants and individuals, and will extend every accommodation consistent with sound banking.

Will negotiate loans on marketable securities. Allow interests on time deposits.

Having repeated requests, from various sources, to buy and sell stocks and bonds, we have concluded to deal generally in miscellaneous securities.

Will buy and sell on commission, state, municipal and railroad bonds, and all kinds of stocks.

We can place first-class investment securities to advantage, and we invite proposals from cities and counties, when issuing bonds.

We do a general banking business and invite correspondence.
